

The swimming garden of Madeira, which is coming up from a depth of 4.000 m up to 1.800 m above sealevel of the Atlantic Ocean most of the people know. But also under water Madeira offers a lot. The mostly rigid coast shows a landscape of special charm also under water. Amongst the big rocks Mantarays, big tame groupers, parrot and trumpet fish, puffer and trigger fish, murrays, rays and a big variety of other species are living.

Most of these varieties we meet even in the housereef with it's easy entrance to the sea, with depths between 3 to 18 m. With a bit of luck you also will see a sun fish or a family of monk seals.
